Zero Ground Disturbance Containment Systems require zero ground penetration and is a perfect alternative for areas where underground systems are not an option.

- These containment systems require ZERO ground penetration and/or disturbance eliminating timely site identification that is typically needed when installing systems requiring post holes set in concrete.
- Ground Guard systems take the risk of puncturing existing pipelines away by removing the threat of digging underground.
- Exclusively for above ground installations, Ground Guard is the toughest, all-steel system available
- Ground Guard Systems are movable and can be reused at different locations.
